UNU-MERIT Working Paper Series: Note to Authors

UNU-MERIT Working Papers aim to generate interest and debate around global problems of human survival, development and welfare. All content should be high quality, in line with the institute’s research aims, and support the research policies outlined in the research and policy context.

Papers should be a maximum of 50 pages and use standard British English, following the style guides of both Maastricht University and United Nations University. For example: analyse, judgement, labour, organisation, programme, etc.

To reach the widest possible audience, we distribute our research to several repositories. For this we use metadata files. To facilitate this process, authors should include the following items on the title page(s) of their working papers:

- Title
- Author(s): full names of all authors (full given- and surname, no initials)
- Abstract: maximum of 300 words
- E-mail address(es): an e-mail address for each author
- Affiliation: at least one affiliation for each author
- Keywords: at least three keywords
- JEL classification codes: at least one JEL code at the double digit level. For example: 033

For more details on JEL codes please click here.

NB: The UNU-MERIT Working Paper series is 100% Open Access. Once released into the public domain, papers cannot be withdrawn. For any further questions please email: info@merit.unu.edu
